INTERESTING TRIP TO CANAL DISTRICT

JANESVILLE COUPLE VISIT BIG DITCH AT PANAMA.

TELLS OF THE JOURNEY

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hayes, Jr., Just Back From South—Wonderful Work Nearly Finished.

Just at this time reference to the Panama canal and its wonderful work that is about completed, is most interesting. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hayes, Jr., have just returned from a visit to the Canal Zone, having made the trip across the isthmus by train and then by boat. The wonderful workings of the big ditch that is to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Mr. Hayes is a graduate of the state university engineering department and is associated with his father and brother in construction work. With his wife he sailed from New York January 17, and of his trip says:

"We left New York January 17, on the boat Calamare, owned by the Fruit company. It has a capacity of 150 passengers, but being full of the traffic around the West Indies. The Calamare is the latest and most modern boat in the service and was making her maiden voyage with a full complement of passengers. On this trip the system of serving meals A la Carte was tried for the first time with success. The ocean was remarkably calm and the trip was very pleasant. Our first stop was at Port Antonio, Jamaica, one of the most beautiful harbors in the world. The peculiar beauty of this harbor is enhanced by the fact that it is not connected to the open sea by any locks or wharves. We were obliged to make the landing here by means of small boats or tenders. From this point the trip was taken by land and by rail. The trip was very pleasant and the scenery was very beautiful. We were very much interested in the work being done on the canal. The work is very hard and it is not until one sees it and even then it is hard to realize that his new channel, clean and deep, was ever a miserable, unhealthy swamp."

"From Kingston we departed for Colon, arriving there on the morning of the 23rd. Here we were met by the party who was to take us to the canal. We were given a landing car and permission to step out onto the new reinforced concrete docks that the government has just completed at a cost of six million dollars. We took the train at the wharf, which is operated by the United States for its employees and the soldiers. This train travels along the banks of the canal from Colon on the Atlantic side to Panama City and Balboa on the Pacific side."

The engines burn oil instead of coal on these trains. Each train is under the guidance of a government employee who points out the places and objects of interest. This railroad was constructed at great expense and with great difficulty, as you will remember it was completed before the time when sanitation had been solved in the canal zone. The innumerable swamps and malarial areas increased the difficulty, but all of this was overcome, and now a most modern system is operated along this line. As we traveled along, I could not help but note the machinery that was standing idle along the sides of the slope. Long lines of steam shovels were stretched out farther than we could see. Hundreds of engines and thousands of cars all ceased to be of use."

"Our first stop was at Gatun locks, which are eight miles from Colon, and are the largest of all the locks. The difference in level between Gatun lake above and the channel leading to the Atlantic below is eighty-five feet. Three stages of lift are necessary for boats passing from the lower channel to Gatun lake. The locks are made in duplicate, one on each side, so that two ships can pass through the locks at the same time and in opposite directions. There are six compartments, each being 810 feet long and 110 feet wide. In these locks there was placed two and one-half million cubic yards of concrete, this being the greatest solid mass of concrete masonry in the world. The sand and gravel for the concrete work was dredged out of the ocean bottom, while the stone was taken from the government quarries in the hills above. The gates are controlled by electricity from a tower on the top of the locks."

"In this tower is a miniature of the entire lock system, so that every time a gate is opened or closed in the locks, a model of it is operated in the same way on this miniature. By this system there is no possibility of the wrong levers being used to cause damage. The entire installation had not been entirely completed when we were there, but we saw a small boat pass through the locks. The quickest that a boat can be raised from one compartment to another in eight minutes, but fifteen minutes will be used in so doing when the canal is in active operation. The water in these locks is admitted through holes in the floor of the locks, the system not being used in any other lock in the world. The boats are towed through the locks by two electric engines for each boat, one in front, to pull and the other in back to stop the forward motion so that no damage will be caused by the bumping of the boat against the gates. The third rail system is used and the control is perfect."

"The water in Gatun lake is controlled by an emergency dam which will regulate the water level of the lake to a height of from 82 to 87 feet above sea level. The Gatun lake is an artificial lake with a surface area of about 164 square miles, maintained by earth dams at Gatun and Pedro Miguel. The water in this lake is supplied by the Chagres river, the object in raising the water above the sea was to avoid making too deep a cut through Culebra. Even now the tops of trees can be seen sticking up above the surface of the water at this part of the channel. The lock is completed except for the earth that has slid into the canal in the Culebra cut. On account of this and the danger of it in the future, the government is cutting the tops of trees from the sides of the canal. This work is now being done, but will be finished about April 1, when the canal will be open one year before the specified time."

"Now we were more than eighty feet above the Pacific ocean. The trip is made by two sets of locks. The first set of locks must enter is the Pedro Miguel, which drops us sixty feet by two flights, and the second is the Miraflores, a one-stage lock with a drop of thirty feet. These two locks are built on the same plan as the locks at Gatun, but are considerably smaller. All the locks are brilliantly lighted, so that ships can pass through at night. After passing these locks, we traveled but a few miles and then entered the city of Panama. Here is located a large temporary hotel erected by the government for employees and sightseers. It is called the Tivoli and is modern in its facilities and moderate in its rates. The city of Panama is not entirely within the ten-mile strip which the United States purchased, consequently, we find the headquarters on the Pacific side to be at Balboa. Here is an electric station which will be ready April 1 of this year. Every day lectures are given here by government employees for the benefit of sightseers on the work and usefulness of the canal."

"The length of the railroad across the isthmus is 50 miles, and the rate is five cents per mile. No liquors are sold in the canal zone, everything is sanitary and clean. We could see colored boys walking around with tanks of oil on their backs, spraying ponds of standing water to kill mosquitoes and flies. All of the roads down there are macadam and are very good roads."

"In the city of Panama all of the buildings are of white plaster and all built upon. At night steel shutters are let down to close shop. The temperature is very hot and makes anyone coming from a northern climate, very lazy for quite a while."

"We returned to Colon and sailed for Port Limon, Costa Rica, where the boat loaded again with cargo. While we traveled along this beautiful little island, the boat stored 30,000 bunches of bananas, and one and one-half million pounds of coffee into its hold. On our journey from Port Limon to Havana I was awakened one morning by the rushing of passengers past my door. I arose and looked out. Not only the passengers but the stokers were standing, every one was running about. The sailors began to swing out and lower the life boat and unreeled the hose. I tried to get dressed and succeeded partially. I rushed out and asked one of the sailors what the trouble was and he said, 'Aw, we're just havin' a fire drill, that's all.'"

From Havana to Key West the water was very rough and the scenery was not at all beautiful. While the trip itself is very interesting at any time, the view of the canal is worth the trip aside from all the interesting things seen. It is hard to realize that this work has been undertaken until one sees it, and even then it is hard to realize that his new channel, clean and deep, was ever a miserable, unhealthy swamp."

Mother! Don't hesitate! If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother. If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't count children to take this harmless "fruit laxative," they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Farce, exceptionally clever and jolly farce, the sort of entertainment that tones up the system with merriment and provides a store of laughter that brings forgetfulness of every torment nest in their lives will be the attraction at the Myers Opera House Monday, March 2nd, for one night only, when S. T. King Amusement Co., Inc., offers Rupert Hughes' delightful play "Excuse Me."

"Excuse Me" is one of the sensational comedy hits of years. It was for nine months at the Gaiety Theater in New York for one whole season, the entire summer and well into the following season. Then to Boston where it remained four months. Simultaneous hits of years. It was playing at for six months in Chicago. These runs, which are of unusual length denote the popularity of "Excuse Me" and shows that it has touched the public's fancy to an uncommon degree. People like this farce all manner and classes of people. There isn't a normal person who will not be carried away by its mirth and comedy. "Excuse Me" is farce, not because it is so good, clean, bright, clever and amusing. Every minute there is a laugh, a smile, a chuckle, and it is laughter that doesn't make you feel silly either, for there is a reason for it, in fact, several reasons. The plot is simple, but the comic complications, amusing persons and everything else that goes to make sparkling, high class comedy.

IF THIS BE TREASON?
 Despite the efforts of the Beloit Daily News and its twin sisters in misrepresentation, the Milwaukee Daily News and Milwaukee Journal the gathering of the three hundred men of Rock county, Saturday, who met at the court house, was not a state movement, but an assembling of the people who desired to express their opinion of the present method of running state affairs, and they did it if it be treason to protest against mismanagement of state affairs, of high handed methods in vogue in the state university, why, as Patrick Henry said, "Let them make the most of it." In characterizing the gathering as they did these papers have insulted every man who took part in it. They have sneered at the efforts of men who are in dead earnest in seeking some redress from the present taxes. It was an assembling of men, of party factions, of all party affiliations. Men who are vitally interested in the state, in the preservation of their homes, in the preservation of their property, in the preservation of their lives, in the preservation of their families, in the preservation of their country.

OF THE PRESENT METHOD OF RUNNING STATE AFFAIRS, AND THEY DID IT IF IT BE TREASON TO PROTEST AGAINST MISMANAGEMENT OF STATE AFFAIRS, OF HIGH HANDED METHODS IN VOGUE IN THE STATE UNIVERSITY, WHY, AS PATRICK HENRY SAID, "LET THEM MAKE THE MOST OF IT."

IN CHARACTERIZING THE GATHERING AS THEY DID THESE PAPERS HAVE INSULTED EVERY MAN WHO TOOK PART IN IT. THEY HAVE SNEERED AT THE EFFORTS OF MEN WHO ARE IN DEAD EARNEST IN SEEKING SOME REDRESS FROM THE PRESENT TAXES.

IT WAS AN ASSEMBLING OF MEN, OF PARTY FACTIONS, OF ALL PARTY AFFILIATIONS. MEN WHO ARE VITALLY INTERESTED IN THE STATE, IN THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR HOMES, IN THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR PROPERTY, IN THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR LIVES, IN THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR FAMILIES, IN THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR COUNTRY.

THEY ARE MAKING HISTORY EVERY DAY DOWN IN MEXICO, ACCORDING TO THE OPINIONS OF THE VARIOUS REVOLUTIONARY LEADERS. PERHAPS THE MEN WHO ARE FOLLOWING VILLA AND CARRANZA FEEL THEY ARE PATRIOTS BUT TO THE AVERAGE CITIZEN OF THE WORLD THEY ARE LITTLE BETTER THAN BANDITS. THE UNITED STATES HAS PLAYED SUCH DILATORY TACTICS FOR SO LONG THAT ANY ATTEMPT NOW TO FORCE AN ISSUE WITH THEM WOULD BE LAUGHED AT UNLESS ENFORCED BY GOOD, COOLD STEEL AND BULLETS. IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT A SOLUTION CAN BE FOUND TO THE PRESENT SITUATION WITHOUT RESORT TO ARMS, BUT IT REALLY LOOKS AS THOUGH SOME ONE STRONGER THAN THE MEN AT PRESENT HANDLING THE DIPLOMATIC END OF THE SITUATION WOULD HAVE TO BE FOUND FIRST.

gratuitous assault upon the liberties we have enjoyed since Wisconsin was made a state. The man who was doing business of any sort in Wisconsin in 1890 and is in business today can hardly recognize himself. The university has been permitted to expand in a wholly impracticable way, under this impertinent cry of progressivism, until it is costing more to run it today than it cost to run the whole state government, and all its institutions fourteen years ago. Everywhere and in everything has extravagant expenditure been the word until now we are confronted squarely with what it has cost and is going to cost our people for giving themselves up to the lead of a lot of political adventurers. The end of this is either a right about face on the part of the people or a plunge into the swamp of state socialism.

"The word progressivism has become the synonym for exploiting the people in the pursuit of impracticable theories of government. It is time the taxpayers rose up in revolt at such misdirection of their trust, their liberties, and their substance. Have fear that there is danger in going back to well tried and conservative principles of government. The danger all lies in going ahead under the lead of progressivism. True progress must always be in the hands of a wise conservative and not in the hands of visionary radicals. In the latter case it proves to be the proverbial 'Bull in a China Shop,' doing more damage than good."

Is this treason? If so let the Daily News and the Milwaukee Journal make the most of it. The public will judge who is right.

The Milwaukee Sentinel makes the following comment on the meeting Saturday:

"The self-canonized sect of Wisconsin latter day saints who are pharisaically crying up the sanctity of the huge fungus growth of socialism abuses in our state government and who parrot their shopworn catchwords of 'tory' and 'reactionary' against every gathering of citizens convened to protest against the intolerable state tax incubus, may be wakened eventually to a realization of the true character of the movement, under the impact of such vigorous raps as were administered to them and their so-called 'Wisconsin idea' by the Rock county citizens' convention at Neeshville last Saturday."

"There could have been a more thoroughly representative and non-partisan gathering. Party and factional politics were completely merged in the concentrated common purpose to protest against the general grievance of state over-taxation and centralized strangle hold bureaucracy of the utterly irregular, un-American and unrepresentative government that has spread its tentacles from Madison into every locality in the state."

"Nobody could rap about his neighbor's party politics. It did not matter two straws to the purpose of the meeting that the chairman happened to be a 'democrat,' the secretary a 'progressive republican,' that this speaker happened to be a 'bull moose,' that one a 'stalwart.' It was a citizens' contention; a taxpayers' indignation meeting; a Rock county insurgency of the people against this bloated vampire of a 'Wisconsin idea' that is draining the veins of the taxpayers, and whose fanatical remnant of pay fed or academe and largely untaxed standpaters have the uttering Corinthian brass to tell the people that their protest against extravagance and socialistic officialism is the torism of a 'few old stalwarts'; that the taxes 'must mount higher and higher' for the sake of righteousness and the locust swarm of tapeworm bureaucrats, universal meddlers, bill factory wisecracks, pay roll parasites, for, as the sapient Nagler says, such things must be as long as we progress civilization."

"Progress!" The old wheeze. As if 'civilization' depended on this or that assortment of politicians, pedants and crotchety mongers playing ducks and drakes with the people's money! If the teachings of history count for anything, stagnation and overtaxation go hand in hand."

ROCK COUNTY SHOWS DETERMINED FRONT ON HIGH TAX EVIL

Saturday's Convention Which Called Out Over 500 Taxpayers Only a Beginning, Say Leaders.

There is no mistaking the fact that there is a mighty sentiment among Rock county taxpayers against the present high tax situation. The sentiment is expressed in the fact that Saturday's mass convention at the circuit court room, which was attended by more than five hundred taxpayers, was a demonstration of the feeling of the taxpayers against the present administration. "We had a great meeting," said Chas. J. Hall, of Janesville, in talking to the press afterwards, "and it should bear good results. Before appointing the members of the committee which is called for by the resolutions, I intend to confer with a number of persons in order to secure representative men from every corner of the county."

The idea of the majority of men present at the meeting was that the tax situation was a real and serious one. Although the train was crowded the conductor procured the bag at White water and returned it to the local station. ## ELECTRIC LIGHTS WERE IN TROUBLE SATURDAY

GO-TO-CHURCH DAY IN JANESVILLE TO BE ON APRIL 26TH

Last Sunday of Next Month Should Be Remembered by Every Citizen for Observance.

The ministers of Janesville have in the majority decided on a definite date for go-to-church day in this city, and have settled on Sunday, April 26th, two weeks after Easter. It is believed by those ministers, at present in favor of observing such a day in Janesville, that every church in the city will favor the plan, both protestant and Catholic, and the result will be far-reaching.

The observance of such a day in Janesville is only a continuance of a plan, which has been successfully carried out throughout the country for the past two months. Chicago made a great showing several weeks ago, along the same line, and since that time, cities all over northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin have adopted the resolution with good results.

There is little doubt but what Janesville can and will succeed in such a movement.

ADAMS SCHOOL BELL FELL ON THURSDAY

Absence of Ring at Regular Intervals Causes No Tardiness by Pupils—Bell is Demolished.

Even for the fact that the huge bell that cautioned the pupils of the Adams school to avoid being late to school, fell on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock, there have been no reports of tardiness for Friday or today. The teachers have since being using a smaller hand bell to call school into order.

It was a lucky thing that none of the pupils at the school were in the way when the bell dropped. The accident occurred just as the janitor was about to ring the bell, Thursday afternoon, to call school to order.

Several bolts, which bore the bulk of the weight of the bell, broke, and the huge piece of metal, frame and all, fell to the ground, alighting on the cement walk at the rear of the school, where a hundred or more students were playing.

This is the third time the bell has caused trouble at the school. "Twice before the clapper of the bell fell out, and onto the ground; but no serious accident resulted. The bell itself is now completely demolished.

One of the three boys had been helping an employee of the store on Thursday morning and sprung the lock on the cash register, which is usually kept locked. Together with two companions they ran the cash drawer, taking over eight dollars.

STEALS CHLOROFORM INSTEAD OF DRUGS

Four Ounce Bottle of Chloroform Missing From Dr. Judd's Office—Drugs Were in Safe.

During the noon hour on Saturday, the office of Dr. W. H. Judd, on north Main street, was entered and peddlers who saw the man go up the stairs, watched him go through the physician's private office, examine the medicine case, and then close the blinds. After being in the office for a period of ten or fifteen minutes, the man came down and walked north.

The men who watched the supposed drug steal go through the office, warned Dr. Judd and made inquiry if he had missed any drugs. Because of the numerous and recent drug robberies, Dr. Judd kept his supply of cocaine and morphine in the safe, but found that a four ounce bottle of chloroform was missing from his medicine cabinet. Chloroform, while not having the same effect as cocaine, codeine or morphine, is habit-forming and is used by fiends in the last stage to satisfy the unnatural drug passion.

The men who first saw the young man go up the stairs, suspected his motive, as he has been suspected in several of the office robberies. He was the man who frightened Miss Marie Schmiedley in the office of Dr. F. C. Binniewies, over a month ago. The matter was reported to the police department, but as the man was not arrested, the man was not arrested.

Whitehead reported that the special committee had secured portraits of the deceased county and circuit judges and that the same had been framed at an expense of $70.

Stroke Not Always Fatal.

Two doctors have independently arrived at the conclusion that most persons struck by lightning, and to all appearances dead, could be called to life by applying the method of artificial respiration in use for resuscitating the drowned. This method proved successful in the case of a man who was apparently killed at Berlin in 1891.

JANESVILLE TO HAVE COUNTY CONVENTION

United Sunday School Gathering from Rock County Will Be in This City on May 7th and 8th.

At a meeting of the Janesville Ministerial Association, held this morning at ten o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. building, it was decided to hold the annual Rock county United Sunday school convention in this city on May seventh and eighth.

This gathering will be an unusually large one, as the attendance will include all of Rock county's Sunday school members. The dates for the convention had been previously set, but the question of holding the gathering in Janesville was the problem to be settled.

The ministers discussed other business matters of lesser importance this morning, followed by an adjournment. The majority of the members were present at the session.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO SECOND CHARGES

Otto Strampe Makes Second Appearance Before Judge Maxfield—Demands Examination.

Family troubles was the reason Otto Strampe gave Judge Maxfield when brought up in the municipal court this morning to explain why he was in court again to answer the charge of drunkenness. Saturday night, the police received a complaint that Strampe was beating and threatening his wife at his residence, 814 North street, and Officer Thomas Morrissey arrested him after he had declared he was a desperado and no "cuck" could get him.

At the station he was searched and again gave more trouble to the police, but after a day behind the bars he appeared in court very meek and humble. He denied that he was drunk and as this is his second appearance, the sentence will be heavier. He will be sentenced under the commitment law.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE AGE OF CONDENSATION.

Have you ever noticed to what extent this age is an age of condensation? Little things are in the ascendant; the smallness of an article is often advertised as its greatest recommendation; almost everything has shrunk since the days of our fathers.

Take books, for instance. Where are the ponderous tomes of yesterday? Shrank by the use of thinner and thinner paper into slender and easily handled volumes. I saw a book which I thought would be useful to me, in the public library one day. It consisted of two large volumes. I ordered the book from the publisher, and when my purchase came it was one little volume, not so large as either of the other two. "This isn't the book I sent for," I said. But it was, only in a new edition, in which, by the use of extremely thin paper, the 1267 pages, which the book contained, had been squeezed into a single volume about an inch and a half thick and weighing scarcely a pound.

The tiny books known as muff and vest pocket editions are particularly the product of the twentieth century. The vest pocket, by the way, a favorite measurement for the desirability of an article, "it will go in your vest pocket," is the last word of recommendation. Camera manufacturers of fifteen or twenty years ago would have probably thought it impossible to make a good camera small enough to go even into a man's coat pocket. Today we have several makes of cameras that will go into a man's vest pocket, and not only cameras either, but first-class products.

Again, do you remember the first fountain pen you bought some ten or fifteen years ago? What a bulky and elephantine thing it was compared with the elegant and efficient little thing of today. The watch is another article which demonstrates this generation's demand for condensation, as a comparison of the expensive watches of today with the expensive watches of your grandfather's time will show you.

Of course our modern apartment houses are the most striking example of condensation. Probably they are at the root of the whole business. When a scrap of space that would have been a "dog" or an entry way in an old-fashioned house, passes for a room; when the stately and spacious old-fashioned kitchen with its attendant wash room and ice room and pantries and sheds is shriveled up into the unbelievable tiny kitchenette; when garrets have disappeared altogether; what wonder that we are obliged to compress all our belongings to fit into these curtailed dwelling places? What wonder that even the women themselves have grown slender and the men no longer have the massive shoulders of yesterday.

This is an age of condensation. We, as well as our belongings, are being cut down to fit into it.

FISH FIXINGS.

A most delicious sauce to serve with boiled or baked fish is the following: Make a rich white sauce, using two tablespoons each of butter and flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and a cup of thin cream. Melt the butter, and when bubbling hot add the flour; mix well and add the milk, and just before taking from the fire add the salt and a few dashes of cayenne, a tablespoonful of chopped capers, one sour pickle chopped and parsley for a garnish with eightths of lemon.

Spanish Codfish.—Take a half pound of salt codfish, one clove of garlic finely chopped, a cup of rich tomato sauce, one onion chopped fine, a few dashes of paprika, a quarter of a cup of olive oil, one-half of a sweet red pepper. Soak the codfish over night, and simmer in fresh water 40 minutes. Pick out the bones and lay the shredded fish in a buttered baking dish. Fry the onion, pepper and garlic in the olive oil and add to the tomato sauce. Cut triangles of bread and fry in the oil and arrange around the dish. Cook for 15 minutes and serve very hot. When soaking cod fish, or any other salty fish, put it skin-side up in the water, otherwise the salt will sink into the skin and flesh and fail to fall to the bottom of the dish.

Luncheon Fish.—Free left-over fish from bones and skin and flake with a fork. To a cupful allow a teaspoonful of flour with a quarter of a teaspoon of mustard, a dash of cayenne, a tablespoonful of butter and a saltspoon of salt. Rub these ingredients well together, adding enough lemon juice to moisten; half fill scallop shells, cover with buttered bread crumbs and set in a hot oven until thoroughly heated.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH JACKSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl nearly nineteen years of age and became engaged to a young man of twenty a few months ago.

Since then I have been thinking it over and somehow I feel as if I could have found someone that had a little property and a little standing, as this young man has nothing except what he works for by the day. He has always been good to me and seems to love me truly, but sometimes I feel a little cold toward him.

(1) Is it too late to see if I could better my condition? (2) Would it be right for me to go with anyone else or should I try to be satisfied with the one I thought to be my choice? (3) I have told him that he would have to have enough money to start a home before I could marry him. Is this not the right thing to expect of him?

ONE WHO IS PUZZLED. (1) No. You can break the engagement if you wish. (2) As long as you are engaged to him, be loyal to him. (3) It is all right to tell him that he must have a little money ahead when he marries, or at least enough to start a home. I am under the impression, my dear, that you do not love this man. If that is so, it will be better for both of you if you break the engagement. A girl who really loves a man will not coolly consider breaking her engagement to him upon the possibility of finding somebody else of better social and financial standing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are girl friends and we both go with fellows. They are nice fellows and they seem to like us quite well, for they come steadily to see us. But they do not

It is no small task to keep that stream in bounds and give to each family its needed supply without interruption.

Women Worth While

MRS. FRANCIS E. WARREN.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.) MRS. FRANCIS E. WARREN, the handsome young wife of Senator Warren of Wyoming, was known in Washington society during her girlhood. Before she came to take her place as a matron of the official set at the capital she was often a guest there at the home of her uncle, the late Justice Brown of the United States supreme court. Senator and Mrs. Warren are now occupying what was formerly the Brown home, in which, as a girl, Mrs. Warren spent so many happy days. It is one of the most beautiful of Washington's many attractive homes, and is well adapted to entertaining on a generous scale. Its drawing rooms contain some rare pieces of old mahogany which would delight the eye of the collector, but which Mrs. Warren prizes most for their family associations. The guest room of this mansion is furnished with colonial pieces which are probably as beautiful examples of the craftsmanship of that period as are in existence anywhere. The great mahogany bed, ornate with brass trimmings, has a canopy elaborate with hand-embroidered designs of the quaint flowers that grew in our great-grandmothers' garden plots. Another piece of particular interest in the same room is an old secretary, carved in what is known as the shell design, and ornamented with brass.

Over this home Mrs. Warren presides with charm and grace. She is fond of society and finds the cosmopolitan social life in Washington particularly interesting, but she is essentially a home woman. She takes great delight in reading, and some of her happiest hours are spent in her big, well-stocked library. Mrs. Warren has never gone in to any great extent for athletics. She has always loved horses, however, and before her marriage kept some particularly fine ones and rode a great deal. She is devoted to out-of-door life and a great lover of nature. She often declares that nothing has ever appealed to her as did her first trip to the west, with its revelation of great distances and grandeur of scenery. Soon after their marriage three years ago, Senator Warren took her West, and she made her first acquaintance with her adopted state of Wyoming. She saw most of the state on that visit, was captivated by its beauty, and has longed to return to it. If congress does not sit in extra session during the coming summer, Senator and Mrs. Warren will return to Cheyenne and open their home there. Mrs. Warren is not a club woman. She is, however, a suffrage by marriage, as she says when asked for her views on equal suffrage, and then explains that Wyoming, her husband's state, enfranchised its women nearly a half century ago. Senator Warren was one of the territorial governors of Wyoming before its statehood rights were

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

About three weeks ago a reader of this paper from up state sent in some recipes and suggestions to be run in this column. One of the recipes was for a boiled fruit cake. She claimed she had been making and selling it to a grocery store there with satisfactory results, that the cost of making would not exceed ten cents a pound and that one could easily sell it for twenty cents for each pound loaf.

That sentence had a sound that the ear of a business person would detect, so the recipe is run with the hope that some woman reader can do as well in this section. If one did not make it to sell they would be earning money by making it for home consumption, for if one woman can make money by selling cake, surely we can save a little by making it for our own use.

The cake is called a "boiled fruit cake" because all the ingredients except the flour, soda and extract are boiled together in a saucepan. After letting boil a few minutes take off and when lukewarm sift in four cups of soda, mix well and add the flavoring.

Bake about an hour in a moderate oven. As the recipe calls for no butter or eggs, it is very inexpensive and the amounts here given will make a two and a half pound loaf that is really good. It has been tried and found to be all that our energetic reader from the north claims it to be.

The recipe: Two cups of flour, one cup of raisins, one cup of currants, one cup of water, one-half cup of lard, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, flavoring, preferably lemon extract.

The same reader writes that she also enlarges her income by making ready wear aprons. As she has two children in college and three at home in school, she is helping with the home expenses and declares she was never more content and is financially fine. This is no "How to make money at home" content but a dollar that is honorably earned is welcome to the most of us. With the idea in mind that this may benefit someone this sketch is run.

granted and was the first governor of the state of Wyoming. When he and Mrs. Warren go to Cheyenne to open their house there, it is safe to say that the latter, by the charm and courtesy of manner for which she is known in Washington, will make as numerous friends as her husband has in the state.

ENORMOUS EXCAVATIONS AT PANAMA

When it is stated that it required the excavation of 222,000,000 cubic yards of material to give the Panama Canal to the American people, the human mind staggers under the load of trying to imagine its vastness. But when it is pointed out that this material, loaded on cars would make a string of them reaching around the earth four times, or that it would make a pyramid with a base a mile square and an apex overtopping the Washington Monument by a hundred feet, the statement becomes comprehensible to the average reader.

And that is why the new book "The Panama Canal," by Frederic J. Haskin, is the best book on the canal. When a writer is able to handle a subject in a way that meets the engineering demand for absolute accuracy and at the same time measures up to the popular demand for its "easy to read" qualities, he has done what few writers ever succeed in doing. Yet from the title page to finish you find that quality in "The Panama Canal."

The Janesville Gazette knew that its readers would want a book possessing the most accurate and at the same time attractively presented information about the canal, so it hastened to improve the opportunity to place before them the one that bears the O. K. of the Chief Engineer, Colonel Goethals. No man can read the story of that great, fearless, spirit-filled, man-making job without being an American proud of the results, and appreciative of the spirit and agency which brings this story to him at the cost of publication. Loss in Heating Value of Fuel.

Recent tests of the loss of heating value of coal in storage indicates that it is so small that it is hardly worth the consideration. Illinois coal put to test at the University of Illinois lost less than 3 per cent. in the course of a year, but the most serious matter is the loss by fire from spontaneous combustion and the breaking up of the coal into small particles so that the loss by dust is a matter of some moment.

DR. KIDDER GIVES SCHOLARLY SERMON

NEW CONGREGATIONAL PASTOR DELIVERS STRONG SUNDAY MORNING ADDRESS.

TODAY'S TEMPTATIONS

Desire to Gratify Malignant Passions, Lust for Power and Love of Show Are Principal Forms.

Dr. S. T. Kidder, temporary supply for the First Congregational pulpit, in an able and scholarly sermon Sunday morning analyzed the temptations of Christ in the wilderness following the forty days of fasting and applied the lessons to the present day problems.

Temptation, the speaker pointed out, comes most readily at moments of weakness. Shut in by darkness, we are discouraged and can see no hope, but if our faith is strong the heavenly light will come. Another characteristic temptation is that it comes all at once like a deluge; today is serenity and peace, tomorrow there are great gulches and chasms.

Taking us by surprise, catching us unawares, what are the temptations with which we are confronted? Here Dr. Kidder examined the three temptations of Christ. The first, in which the devil commanded him to turn the stones into bread in order to gratify his hunger, has its counterpart with us when we are tempted to take the grosser things of life in place of the pure, in vain endeavor to make ourselves believe that the substitution is beneficial. It is a matter of gratifying useless and malignant passions. It is a matter of gratifying the body at the expense of the soul.

The second temptation, in which the devil offers dominion over the world, might be called the lust of the eyes. We see it today in the craving for selfish power over men without being their servant. We see it in the passion for wealth so that we may rule men but do not need to rule ourselves.

The third temptation, in which the matter of love of show and vainglory, a temptation which is very common today among boastful and vain people. It leads the way to the fall that succeeded foolish pride.

Dr. Kidder called attention to the significant answers which Christ gave the tempter noting that they were quotations from the old Deuteronomical law indicating that Christ accepted the soundness of this early code which some teachers of today would discredit.

And after the temptations there came the angels who ministered unto him. This, is always the case, said the speaker. After the struggle comes peace if we are victorious. Our wrestlings with evil will not go unrewarded.

Dr. Kidder at the outset declared that he would not attempt to dogmatize that no personal devil exists, especially in the face of the evidence of the gospel. The gospel is not, he declared, a treatise on demonology or angelology, and he would reply to the man who asks "Is God a good God make a bad devil?" by saying that a man can make himself bad a devil can do the same thing. We all are tempted and even our Lord was not immune.

Dr. Kidder took for his text Hebrews 4:15: "For we have not a high priest who cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities, but yet without sin." and his exhortation was to stand fast in the word of Hebrews 2:18: "For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted."

MRS. J. R. LILLEY DIES MONDAY AFTERNOON

Sharon, Feb. 27.—On last Monday afternoon at her home in this village occurred the death of Mrs. J. R. Lilley. Sarah B. Bowmy was born in Ohio, Jan. 8, 1838. When a young lady her parents moved to Blaine, and while there she was married to Joseph R. Lilley. Four children were born to them, three of whom live in Sharon, namely, Wesley, George and Mrs. Florence Warren. Later she had been feeling unusually well, visited at her son Wesley's Friday and attended the first time she attended church services for quite a while, where she enjoyed very much. On Monday she prepared dinner as usual, which she enjoyed with her husband and son Benjamin. After doing up the dinner work she set yeast for the next day's baking and then sat down in her chair to rest. She felt asleep and never awakened. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the M. E. church, of which she had been a member for many years. The pastor, Rev. E. M. Oliver, officiating. Burial was made in Blaine cemetery.

Seti Adams was born in Fulton, New York, 1838, and died in Walworth, Wisconsin, Feb. 18, 1914, where he and his wife had gone to spend the winter with their daughter. The funeral was held at the Brick church, west of Walworth, on Sunday, Feb. 22, and interment was made in the cemetery near by.

ANAEMIC SINCE CHILDHOOD

How Miss Holmes Regained Her Health.

If you are anaemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face—colorless lips, ashen finger nails, poor circulation and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition.

What Vinol did for Miss Yvonne Holmes of Fall River, Mass., it will do for every anaemic run-down person. She says: "I have been weak and anaemic since childhood, always had that tired feeling. Tonic after tonic was tried with little or no result until Vinol was recommended, and after taking three bottles, my appetite and digestion have been improved. I do not suffer any more from insomnia, nor do I have distressing headaches as formerly, and I am stronger than I have been for years. We ask every anaemic or run-down, weak person in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not do all we claim. Hetty's eyes filled with tears. "Oh, I am sorry for him. He didn't deserve it. God in heaven, if he really knew everything! If he knew why I could not listen to him, why I almost screamed when he held my hands in his and begged—actually begged me to—Oh, it was ghastly, Sara!"

She covered her face with her hands, and away as if about to fall. Sara came quickly to her side. Putting an arm about the quivering shoulders, she led the girl to the broad window seat and threw open the blinds.

"Don't speak of it, dearest—don't think of that. Sit here quietly in the air and pull yourself together. Let me talk to you. Let me tell you how deeply distressed I am, not only on your account, but his."

They were silent for a long time, the girl lying still and almost breathless against the other's shoulders. She was still wearing the delicate blue dinner gown, but in her fingers was the exquisite pearl necklace Sara had taken her for Christmas. She had given it off and had forgotten to drop it in her jewel box.

"I suppose he will go up to the city early," she said monotonously.

"Leslie is a better loser than you think, my dear," said Sara, looking out over the tops of the cedars. "He will not run away."

Hetty looked up in alarm. "You mean he will persist in—in his attentions," she cried.

"Oh, no. I don't believe you will find him to be the bugbear you imagine. He can take defeat like a man. He is devoted to you, he is devoted to me. Your decision no doubt wrecks his fondest hopes in life, but it doesn't make a weakling of him."

"Damn it All, Sara! She—She Turned Me Down!"

"I don't quite understand—"

"He is sustained by the belief that he has paid you, the highest honor a man can pay to a woman. There is no reason why he should turn his back on you, as a sulky boy might do. No, my dear, I think you may count on him as your best, most loyal friend from this night on. He has just said to me that his greatest pain lies in the fact that you may not be willing to accept him as a simple, honest, unassuming friend since—"

"Oh, Sara, if he will only be that and nothing more!" cried the girl wonderingly.

Sara smiled confidently. "I fancy you haven't much to fear in that direction, my dear. It isn't in Leslie Wrاندall's make-up to court a second repulse. He is all pride. The blow it suffered tonight can't be repeated—at least, not by the same person."

"I am so sorry it had to be Leslie," murmured Hetty.

"Be nice to him, Hetty. He deserves that much of you, to say the least."

should miss him if he found it impossible to come here on account of—"

"I wouldn't have that happen for the world," cried the girl in distress. "He is your dearest friend. Send me away, Sara, if you must. Don't let anything stand in the way of your friendship for Leslie. You depend on him for so much, dear. I can't bear the thought of—"

"Hush, dearest! You are first in my love. Better for me to lose all the others and still have you."

The girl looked at her in wonder for a long time. "Oh, I know you mean it, Sara, but—how can it be true?"

"Put yourself in my place," was all that Sara said in reply, and her companion had no means of translating the sentence.

She could only remain mute and wondering, her eyes fixed on that other mystery, the cameo face in the moon that hung high above the somber forest.

"Poor Leslie," murmured Sara, a long time afterward, a dreamy note in her voice. "I can't put him out of my thoughts. He will never get over it. I have never seen one so stricken and yet so brave. He would have been more than a husband to you, Hetty. It is in him to be a slave to the woman he loves. I know him well, poor boy."

Hetty was silent, brooding. Sara resumed her thoughtful observations. "Why should you let what happened months ago stand in the way of—"

She got no farther than that. With an exclamation of horror, the girl sprang away from her and glowered at her with dilated eyes.

"My God, Sara!" she whispered hoarsely. "Are you mad?"

The other sighed. "I suppose you must think it of me," she said dismally. "We are made differently, you and I. If I cared for a man, nothing in all this world could stand between me and him."

Hetty was still staring. "You don't mean to say you would have me marry Challis Wrاندall's brother?" she said, in a sort of stupefaction.

Sara shook her head. "I mean this: you would be justified in permitting Leslie to glorify that which his brother decried; your womanhood, my dear."

"My God, Sara!" again fell in a hoarse whisper from the girl's lips.

"I simply voice my point of view," explained Sara calmly. "As I said before, we look at things differently."

"I can't believe you mean what you said," cried Hetty. "Why—why, if I loved him with all my heart, soul and body I could not even think of—Oh, I shudder to think of it!"

"I love you," continued Sara, fixing her mysterious eyes on those of the girl, "and yet you took from me something more than a brother. I love you, knowing everything, and I am paying in full the debt he owes to you. Leslie, knowing nothing, is no less your debtor. All this is paradoxical, I know, my dear, but we must remember that while other people may be indebted to us, we also owe something to ourselves. We ought to take pay from ourselves. Please do not conclude that I am urging or even advising you to look with favor upon Leslie Wrاندall's honorable, sincere proposal of marriage. I am merely trying to convince you that you are entitled to all that any man can give you in this world of ours—we women all are, for that matter."

"I was sure that you couldn't ask me to marry him. I couldn't believe—"

"Forget what I have said, dearest, if it grieves you," cried Sara warmly. She arose and drew the girl close to her. "Kiss me, Hetty. Their lips met. The girl's eyes were closed, but Sara's were wide open and gleaming.

"It is because I love you," she said softly, but she did not complete the sentence that burned in her brain. To herself she said that I would scourge you with Wrاندalls!"

"You are very good to me, Sara," sobbed Hetty.

"You will be nice to Leslie?"

"Yes, yes! If he will only let me be his friend."

"He asks no more than that. Now, you must go to bed."

Suddenly, without warning, she held the girl tightly in her arms. Her breathing was quick as of one moved by some sharp sensation of terror. When Hetty, in no little wonder, opened her eyes Sara's face was turned away, and she was looking over her shoulder as if cause for alarm had come from behind.

"What is it?" cried Hetty anxiously. She saw the look of dread in her companion's eyes, even as it began to fade.

"I don't know," muttered Sara. "Something. I can't tell what came over me. I thought some one was stealing up behind me. How silly of me."

"Ah," said Hetty, with an odd smile, "I can understand how you felt."

"Hetty, will you take me in with you tonight?" whispered Sara, nervously. "Let me sleep with you. I can't explain it, but I am afraid to be alone tonight." The girl's answer was a glad smile of acquiescence. "Come with me, then, to my bedroom while I change. I have the queerest feeling that some one is in my room. I don't want to be alone. Are you afraid?"

Hetty held back, her face blanching. "No, I am not afraid," she cried at once, and started toward the door.

"There is some one in this room," said Sara a few moments later, when they were in the big bedroom down the hall.

"I—I wonder," murmured Hetty.

And yet neither of them looked about in search for the intruder!

Far into the night Sara sat in the window of Hetty's dressing room, her chin sunk low in her hands, staring moodily into the now opaque night, her eyes somber and unblinking, her body as motionless as death itself. The cooling wind caressed her and whispered warnings into her unheeding ears, but she sat there unprotected against its chill, her nightdress damp with the mist that crept up with sinister stealth from the sea.

CHAPTER XI.

In the Shadow of the Mill.

The next day but one was overcast. On cloudy, bleak days Hetty Castleton always felt depressed.

Leslie was to return from the wilds on the following day. Early in the morning Booth had telephoned to inquire if she did not want to go for a long walk with him before luncheon. The portrait was finished, but he could not afford to miss the morning hour with her. He said as much to her in pressing his invitation.

"Tomorrow Leslie will be here and I shan't see as much of you as I'd like," he explained, rather wistfully.

"There is a crowd, you know. I've got so used to having you all to myself, it's hard to break off suddenly."

"I will be ready at eleven," she said, and was instantly surprised to find that her voice rang with new life, new interest. The grayness seemed to lift from the view that stretched beyond the window; she even looked for the sun in her eagerness.

It was then that she knew why the world had been bleaker than usual, even in its cloak of gray.

A little before eleven she set out briskly to intercept him at the gates. Unknown to her, Sara sat in her window, and viewed her departure with gloomy eyes. The world also was gray for her.

They came upon each other unexpectedly at a sharp turn in the avenue. Hetty colored with a sudden rush of confusion, and had all she could do to meet his eager, happy eyes as he stood over her and proclaimed his pleasure in jerky, awkward sentences. Then they walked on together, a strange shyness attending them. She experienced the faintness of breath that comes when the heart is filled with pleasant alarms. As for Booth, his blood sang. He thrilled with the joy of being near her, of the feel of her all about him, of the delicious feminine appeal that made her so wonderful to him. He wanted to crush her in his arms, to keep her there forever, to exert all of his brute physical strength so that she might never again be herself but a part of him.

They uttered commonplaces. The spell was on them. It would lift, but for the moment they were powerless to struggle against it. At length he saw the color fade from her cheeks; her eyes were able to meet his without the look in them that all men love. Then he seemed to get his feet on the ground again, and a strange, ineffably sweet sense of calm took possession of him.

"I must paint you all over again," he said, suddenly breaking in on one of her remarks. "Just as you are today—an outdoor girl, a glorious outdoor girl!"

"In muddy boots," she laughed, drawing her skirt away to reveal a shapely foot in an American walking shoe.

He smiled and gave voice to a new thought. "By Jove, how much better looking our American shoes are than the kind they wear in London!"

"Sara insists on American shoes, so long as I am with her. I don't think our boots are so villainous, do you?"

"Just the same, I'm going to paint you again, boots and all. You—"

"Oh, how tired you will become of me!"

"Try me!"

"Besides, you are to do Sara at once. She has consented to sit to you. She will be wonderful, Mr. Booth, oh, how wonderful!"

There was no mistaking the sincerity of this rapid opinion.

"Stunning," was his brief comment. She was silent for a long time, so long indeed that he turned to look at her.

"A thoroughly decent, fair minded chap is Leslie Wrاندall," he pronounced, for want of something better to say. "Still, I'm bound to say, I'm sorry he is coming home tomorrow."

The red crept into her cheeks again. "I thought you were such pals," she said nervously.

"I expect to be his best man if he ever marries," said he, whacking a stone at the roadside with his walking stick. Then he looked up at her furtively and added, with a quizzical smile: "Unless something happens."

"What could happen?"

"He might marry the girl I'm in love with, and in that case, I'd have to be excused."

"Where shall we walk to this morning?" she asked abruptly. He had drawn closer to her in the roadway.

"Is it too far to the old stone mill? That's where I first saw you, if you remember."

"Yes, let us go there," she said, but her heart sank. She knew what was coming. Perhaps it were best to have it over with; to put it away with the things that were to always be her lost treasures. It would mean the end of their companionship, the end of a love dream. She would have to lie to him: to tell him she did not love him.

Dinner Stories

A keen-eyed mountaineer led his overgrown son into a country schoolhouse.

"This here boy's arter larnin'," he announced. "What's yer bill o' fare?"

"Our curriculum, sir," corrected the schoolmaster, "embraces geography, physiology, arithmetic, algebra, trigonometry—"

"That'll do," interrupted the father. "Thet'll do. Lead him up heavy with trigonometry. He's the only poor shot in the family."

There is a story of a young man who had just been engaged by a Manchester firm and who was warned that the great fault of his predecessor had been want of tact. The young man started out, and to the surprise of his employers, orders began to come in at a quite unprecedented rate.

The climax came when a big order was sent in from a firm in whom the wholesale house had had a bitter quarrel, ending in a total stoppage of business. The traveler's employers sent for him on his return and asked him how he had managed that particular miracle.

"I used tact, sir," was the reply, "as you warned me. When I got to Mr. B's shop he came up and asked me what firm I represented. Remembering the circumstances, I handed him my card and said, 'Why, these—'
